Everything Compliance is the only roundtable podcast in compliance, with four top compliance practitioners. This week the team deals with four focused topics on its Four of a Kind edition.

Each commentary is followed with the customary rants.

- Matt Kelly considers the new management strategy of reducing middle management in corporations. Where does compliance fit into this new structure?
- Mike Volkov explores the upcoming compliance reckoning. What is it and how should compliance professionals prepare?
- Jonathan Armstrong reviews the new UK Data Privacy-Data Protection Law.
- Jay Rosen considers the importance of corporate culture. How does one survey, understand and then improve corporate culture? How can you demonstrate any of these steps to a regulator or the DOJ?
