

Everything Compliance - Episode 89 - the Changes Coming Edition

Date : November 18, 2021

Welcome to the only roundtable podcast in compliance.

The entire team is thrilled to be honoured by W3 as a top talk show in podcasting.

In the context of several different stories, the full team gives their individual takes on the recent speech by Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco announcing a shift in enforcement focus by the DOJ.

We end as usual with the shout outs and rants.

You can listen to the podcast here <http://compliancepodcastnetwork.net/episode-89-the-changes-coming-edition/>

- Jonathan Armstrong takes a look at the speech from the UK perspective and ties in a couple of recent UK data privacy enforcement actions.
 - Armstrong shouts out and rants about the fraudster Dr. Ruja Ignatova and her fraudulent crypto currency OneCoin.
- Karen Woody looks at it from the SEC perspective and reviews some additional remarks by SEC Chair Gensler on the topic.
 - Karen shouts out to the TV show and pop culture phenomenon Succession.
- Jay Rosen discusses the speech from the monitorship perspective.
 - Rosen shouts out to dads everywhere by honouring OBS, Odell Beckham, Sr. for getting his son out of Cleveland and to the LA Rams.
- Matt Kelly gives an overview of the speech and what it all means.
 - Kelly has a shout out to People Magazine and Paul Ruud. The Mag named Ruud the 'Sexiest Man in America for 2021'.
- Jonathan Marks talks about this speech will impact internal investigations.
 - Marks continues his last rant about hotels. This time for booking him into an already occupied room.
- Tom Fox shouts out to the NFL Fashion Police for fining CeeDee Lamb over $15K for having his shirt tail out during a game while fining Aaron Rogers less than $15K for breaking Covid-19 protocols.
