

Episode 151: Should we forget the right to be forgotten?

Date : July 13, 2015

In this week's podcast Jonathan and Eric look again at the right to be forgotten. They talk about some recent BBC disclosures on cases which have been removed from Google which involve criminal activity including insider trading and theft. They also look at developments in the Schrems litigation against Facebook and whether class actions for data protection matters have had their day.

TechLaw10 is a 10-minute audio podcast update from U.S. lawyer Eric Sinrod (Duane Morris) and UK lawyer Jonathan Armstrong \(Cordery\) where they share insights on developments where technology intersects with the law in the EU and the U.S. These well-known commentators are sought out in the media for their opinions on breaking news and developing trends. Whether you are in North America or Europe, now you can hear directly from them regarding the latest technology issues at home and across the pond.