In this episode, the panel discuss the recent enforcement action where Airbus agreed to pay more than £3bn to resolve bribery charges in France, UK and US.

Jonathan Armstrong considers the SFO component of the Airbus international corruption enforcement action. Jonathan asks whether the Airbus UK-DPA is the end of the story in England and suggests perhaps not.

In the rants, Jonathan Armstrong shouts out to Theresa May for collecting $125K for a one-hour speech to PwC. He notes that with prep and travel time it works out to only $8K per hour.
